PROTEIN FOODS
Dairy Products. Use milk for easy cooking on warm days. Milk to drink and milk for cooking... whole, skim, flavored, dry nonfat, cultured, or evaporated. And don't forget cream for strawberries, for coffee, and sour cream for vegetables as well as berries.

Market meat departments, as usual, will have "specials." This time of year you'll find cuts from the forequarter of beef carrying lower price tags. If you haven't tried chuck steaks you might find your family will enjoy them. They are flavorful but most cooks use some method of tenderizing... either one of the commercial preparations or a favorite marinade. Of course you can't go wrong in choosing ground beef. So many ways to prepare it and diners of all ages like it. Ham is still a fairly good buy... watch for "specials" on shoulders... either fresh or canned.

Poultry. Small turkeys (8 to 12 pounds) are delicious barbecued. There are plenty in market an you'll probably be interested in the price. Fresh or frozen. Chicken broilers-fryers, too.

Eggs have been in the low-price bracket for so long that producers are searching for methods of reducing their costs. Perhaps "synchronized hens" are an answer. Flocks of hens that lay their eggs at the same time would save labor costs... eggs would have to be gathered only once a day. All this may be made possible by breeding, by the use of light, controlled temperature, timing, and sound. Yes, sound effects are used... recordings of happy hens played at different times of the day and night. All this is under way at Davis Campus of the University.

Crafts Session For Leaders Set For Next Friday

The session is scheduled for 9:30 until 11:30 a.m. at the Arts and Crafts Center, 22730 Lupine Drive, Friday, May 27. Center director Erika Muhl said the course is designed for leaders for groups of youngsters from 8 through 12 years of age and is being offered as a community service.

Persons interested in registering are asked to phone the Recreation Dept. at FA 8-4108. There will be a charge of 50 cents to cover the cost of craft materials.
